Allen and Dick Celebrate 40 Years with Tribe

There was a real sense of celebration, teamwork and genuine appreciation among the guests and presenters at the 2022 Employee Milestone dinner, held in Club Seven at 7 Cedars Casino on Thursday October 27th. Tribal Council members took turns calling the names of employees celebrating 5, 10 and 15 years, who stood and were cheered by the crowd for their contributions to the Tribe. Those celebrating 20, 25, 30 and 40 years were called to the front individually and lauded by their supervisors for their dedication and teamwork over the decades. As always, 7 Cedars Casino staff took such good care of us as we reveled in our shared success.

Charlene Dick was one of the first staff members hired at the Tribe's Boardwalk Square office in Sequim. She and Ron Allen have spent four decades working together, and they have shared both hard work and a sense humor with each other over the years.

The highlights of the evening were the celebrations of 40 years of service by Charlene Dick and Ron Allen. CFO Diane Gange sang Charlene's praises, and former Council Vice-Chairwoman Liz Mueller regaled us with Ron's accomplishments, saying "His vision, initiative and strong commitment to the Tribe have moved us forward over the past 40 years."

In response, Ron said "If you don't form a team, you can't get things done, and you (staff) are members of our Tribal family. I'm a huge believer in creativity, and you have the expertise to provide the answers we need to be successful."

Healing Clinic Sign Wins Award

The Healing Campus signs earned second place in the American Institute of Commemorative Art's (AICA) Public Memorial Design category for 2022. The signage was designed by Artisan Manager Bud Turner and fabricated by Quiring Monument.

The AICA is an association of retail monument companies and consultants who specialize in memorials with exceptionally creative design. Located throughout the United States and Canada, AICA members are devoted to the highest standards of memorial design and business ethics in the monument industry. An award plaque is forthcoming from the AICA.

Rice Fergus Miller Win Award for Tribal Healing Clinic

Rice Fergus Miller has been awarded a 2022 User Centered Design Award by the Healthcare Facilities Symposium & Expo for its design of the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe Healing Clinic. The clinic, which is located in Washington's North Olympic Peninsula, opened its doors in the spring of 2022 as a healing center for Tribal and non-Tribal individuals who are experiencing substance use disorder. Here's what the architectural firm said about the building design:

The Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe is the North Olympic Peninsula's largest primary care provider. They have a proven track record of administering first-class healthcare services to their community. Deeply committed to their community's wellness, the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe has taken the lead in partnering with other local healthcare providers to meet the growing need for opioid use disorder treatment across the Peninsula through this new medication assisted treatment (MAT) facility. Unlike other so-called "dose and go" clinics, the Jamestown S'Klallam's healing center will be only the third of its kind in the nation—providing full wrap-around services including primary care, dental, individual and group counselling, child watch, and social services.

To recognize the journey ahead for those battling this debilitating disease, the design team worked closely with tribal elders, story tellers, and artists to weave elements of the Tribe's culture into the building and to make the stories of healing, change, and passage part of the recovery process.

The clinic is located between Highway 101 and Costco in Sequim.

First Foods Ceremony

After two years of virtual ceremonies, the First Foods Ceremony was held in-person at the new Dungeness River Nature Center on the evening of November 12th.

Hosted by the Traditional Foods and Cultural Program staff, the event honored foods given by the earth and to give thanks for its nourishment. The seven staple foods that were the focus include water, hooved animals and mammals, shell fish, fin fish, berries and plants, root foods, and winged creatures.

"We are here to express gratitude... to the earth," Cultural Programs Supervisor Lisa Barrell said. "The earth provides us with our every need," she continued, explaining how each of the foods connect to one another and the Jamestown people. Lisa also invited guests to think and remember those who passed away in the last year.

After an opening prayer and song, "The Welcome Song," and introductions, a small sampling of each of the foods was placed on each attendee's plate. A song by the Jamestown Singers that corresponded with each food, such as "The Paddle Song" for the water, went before each tasting. The seven samples were: water, elk jerky, clam, salmon, berries, potatoes, and duck. To pay homage to the shellfish, Tribal Elder and renowned storyteller Elaine Grinnell (Prince) told a story of a grandmother on the beach with a crew of crabs during a storm. She taught the diners a crab song as the character had in her narrative.

A rich traditional foods dinner was presented, including salmon, smoked duck, Dungeness crab, sprouts and kale salad with cranberries, geoduck fritters, seaweed salad, roasted potatoes and sunchoke, shrimp, black moss pudding, Indian tea with honey, nettle lemon honey, huckleberry, and elderberry shrub. For dessert, apple, pacific crabapple, and huckleberry crisp finished the event.

Before leaving for the evening, every diner left with a gift of traditional foods they could take home and enjoy.

Election Results

The Jamestown S’Klallam Tribal Constitutional amendment change passed. There were 105 votes for yes and 34 votes not in favor. There were five ballots that were invalid because the affidavit was not included with the ballot.

The amendment means that from now on, to run for Tribal Council, ten years must have passed since a serious felony has been recorded against the candidate.

New Communications and Publications Specialist

Jackie Johnson.

It’s a good day today. My name is Jackie Johnson. I’m a Tribal Citizen of the Makah Tribe and was raised in Port Angeles. I bet some of you know my parents, Dwayne and Michelle Johnson (Makah), and grandparents, Ron (Makah) and Julie Johnson (Lummi).

Prior to accepting the Tribal Communications and Publications Specialist position with Jamestown, I was serving the Puyallup Tribe of Indians as their Digital Media Manager where I supervised the Tribe’s digital communication strategies and managed the online presence of websites, social media, and e- newsletters. I graduated from Port Angeles High School and went on to earn a Bachelor of Arts in American Indian Studies and a Master of Communication degree from the University of Washington.

I’m excited to be back home on the Olympic Peninsula and work here at the Jamestown S’Klallam Tribe!

Inaugural Grinnell Scholarships Announced

The Kurt Grinnell Aquaculture Scholarship Foundation (KGASF) today announced that it has awarded its first-ever aquaculture scholarships to three students—two representing US Tribes and one representing one of Canada's First Nations. Each scholar will receive US $5,000 to pursue degrees in aquaculture, marine biology, and fisheries and wildlife science.

Established to honor the legacy of the late Kurt Grinnell, a beloved Jamestown S'Klallam leader who saw aquaculture as a solution to Tribal food security, the KGASF provides financial assistance to Tribal and First Nations students who wish to pursue careers in aquaculture and natural resources, said Jaiden Grinnell Bosick, one of Grinnell's two daughters.

Bosick, who fishes commercially in Alaska with her husband, serves on the KGASF Board, where she heads up the Scholarship Selection Committee.

"As a family and as a Board, we are immensely proud of these three scholarship winners," said Bosick. "We all believe these students have a bright and shining future ahead, and we look forward to their contributions to the field of aquaculture." She added, "My dad would have been honored and proud to know them."

The scholarship award announcement coincides with the celebration in the United States of National Native American Heritage Month, which is celebrated every June in Canada as National Indigenous History Month, said Levana Mastrangelo, Vice-Chair of the KGASF board and Selection Committee member. "We believe that the scholarships made possible by the KGASF not only help these students financially, but for every scholarship winner, there is a strong connection to their Tribal or First Nation heritage," she said. Mastrangelo, the Senior Reconciliation Advisor at Cermaq Canada, Ltd., belongs to the Ucluelet First Nation – Yuulu?i?ath Government.

"In Canada, aquaculture plays a vital role in First Nation communities and is a path to self-determination and Reconciliation," she said, adding that "aquaculture provides many jobs and economic opportunities, as well as creating healthy seafood products."

The inaugural scholarship winners are Michael Buck of the Yakama Nation in Washington State (whose Yakama Nation name is Ka-Kin-As); Alana Schofield of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community in Michigan; and Taylor Nichols of the Wahnapiatae First Nation (WFN) in Ontario, Canada.

- Michael Buck, enrolled at the University of Washington's School of Marine and Environmental Affairs, has "a keen interest in historic fisheries in the Columbia River Basin including lamprey populations which were historically important to several Tribes in the Columbia River Basin." He plans to use his scholarship to pursue his master's degree.
- Alana Schofield is enrolled at Lake Superior State University in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, where she will pursue a degree in Fisheries and Wildlife Biology. Alana has experience in Tribal Fisheries and is interested in learning about aquaculture and aquaponics, with the goal of "returning to her Tribal Community and using her knowledge to advance tribal sovereignty and improve and protect the natural environment."
- Taylor Nichols has experience in aquaculture via a pickerel micro-hatchery with the WFN and is currently pursuing a Master of Science Degree in Biology from Laurentian University in Sudbury, Ontario. She is a graduate of Canada's Dalhousie University.

Those who wish to support the education of future leaders in aquaculture and fisheries may donate to: Contribute Kurt Grinnell Aquaculture Scholarship Foundation (kurtgrinnellscholarship.org)

National Native American Veterans Memorial

A pair of Jamestown Elders and Vietnam War veterans, Tribal Veterans Representative Al Fletcher (Patsey) and Michael Lowe (Lowe/Chubby), traveled to Washington, DC to represent the Tribe in a procession and dedication of the National Native American Veterans Memorial. Fittingly on Veterans Day, November 11th, Al and Michael joined with other military servicemen and servicewomen to witness history.

At 7 Cedars Casino's Club Seven were a group of other Jamestown veterans and their families during a livestream watch party, cheering the duo when they made their way through the procession. A long line of veterans walked through the rainy streets of the nation's capital for the procession with Michael striking his decorative drum alongside Al who held the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribal flag.

"It was a trip of a lifetime," Michael said.

Michael recounted the moments that spoke to him, the National Anthem sung by two Native American vocalists and another tribute song to Native American women warriors. Al and Michael also met Wes Studi, a Cherokee Nation actor known for his roles in "Dances with Wolves" and "The Last of the Mohicans," who also spoke during the dedication. While traveling about DC, the pair made connections with other Native veterans from around the country.

Though their trip was for the Veterans Day event, Al and Michael made sure to sightsee around the National Mall and its surrounding area. Miles of walking took them to the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument, the Arlington Cemetery for The Changing of the Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Museum of the Bible, and other destinations. On the first floor of the National Museum of American Indians, they found the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe flag posted among all the other flags of indigenous nations within the United States.

While traveling, their cedar woven hats caught the attention of several others. "We were stopped so many times because people loved our hats," Al said. "At times we had a hard time making our way to our destination. It was good we were able to share our culture, our history, and location of our tribe with so many people." He thanked his fellow Tribal Elder Cathy MacGregor (Reyes/MacGregor) for crafting the hats especially for the occasion.

Al thanked the Tribal Council for sending Michael and himself to the event. "We were blessed to see and be part of history," he said. "As stated by Thich Nah Han (a Vietnamese Thien Buddhist monk), veterans are the light of the top of the candle, illuminating the way for the whole nation. If veterans can achieve awareness, transformation, understanding, and peace, they can share with the rest of society the realities of war. And they can teach us how to make peace with ourselves and each other, so we never have to use violence to resolve conflicts again."

Make Sure the Gas is Turned Off

Near the end of October, Tribal Elder Elaine Grinnell (Prince) was playing with her great-granddaughter when her granddaughter, Sarah Klostermeier (Prince) arrived. She smelled something in the air. Believing it was a gas leak, Sarah rushed her grandmother and child out of the house and opened the doors.

It turned out someone had left the knob on the gas stove turned on, or had bumped it to cause a small leak into the house.

"It was probably on for a long time," Elaine said. "It's sneak, that's what it is," she added, calling it dangerous, "if Sarah hadn't come in, smell the gas and turned off the source."

After the incident, the Grinnells were sure to have a carbon monoxide detector in their kitchen. Fred, Elaine's husband, "got the best one he could get," she said.

"I want everyone to be aware of house gas. We know about gas, and that it can be a killer, especially during the cold," Elaine said. She recommended everyone to have their local Fire Department number handy in case they have a similar situation. "They'll get to you in a hurry," she said.

Carbon monoxide gas can cause sudden illness or death. The Centers for Disease Control reported that at least 430 people die in the United States from accidental carbon monoxide poisoning, with about 30,000 people who visit the emergency department each year. Stoves aren't the only devices that can cause carbon monoxide poisoning. Other sources could be furnaces, lanterns, charcoal and wood burning.

According to SeniorSafetyAdvice.com, effects of inhaling gas include:

- Persistent headaches
- Dizziness
- Nausea and flu-like symptoms
- Fatigue
- Irritation of the eyes and throat
- Blistering of the skin
- Difficulty breathing

Along with medical impacts of breathing gas, explosions can happen, however rare. A spark or flame around a gas leak could result in an explosion, so it is crucial to ensure the gas is turned off and nothing is leaking before leaving the house or going to bed. Newer stove models have safety measures in place, so if you have an older model extra precaution is needed.

If gas is present, which could smell like a rotten egg, it's important to evacuate the house and avoid touching anything that may spark a fire. Call 911 as soon as you are at a safe distance.

To prevent tragedy, it's important to invest in safety measures such as shut-off devices, fire extinguishers, a carbon monoxide detector, stove alarms, and a smoke alarm.

Natalie Lounsbury, Community Health Rep

Natalie Lounsbury, spouse of Tribal citizen Christian Lounsbury. Natalie will be taking on the role of Community Health Representative, she will be your contact for transports to medical and dental appointments. Natalie started with us on November 21, she may be reached at (360) 582-4874 or nlounsbury@jamestownhealth.org.

As some of you may know Ethel Colon has left the Community Health Rep job to semi-retirement. We couldn't be happier for her in this phase of life and having the work life balance we all deserve. Those of you that would like to say hi, she will be working at the Dungeness River Nature Center on Saturdays and Sundays.

Ginger Rodriguez, ARNP

Ginger is a born and raised Texan, but switched loyalties to the PNW after finishing her education. She received her family nurse practitioner degree from Emory University in Atlanta, GA and completed a residency training program at Sea Mar Community Health in Seattle. She sees patients of all ages, but is particularly passionate about women's health. Ginger is fluent in Spanish and previously worked with HIV+ populations in Nicaragua as a Peace Corps volunteer. As a member of the Muscogee-Creek Nation, her dream has always been to establish her practice at a tribal clinic. She looks forward to building deep, lasting relationships with her patients and the community. When she's not wearing her stethoscope, you can find her spending quality time hiking, playing and exploring with her husband and four wonderful kids.

Homeowners Assistance Funds Applications Available

U.S. Department of Treasury Funds are available for Jamestown S'Klallam Tribal homeowners who have been affected by COVID-19.

Eligible expenses include mortgage payments and reinstatement; Homeowner Association fees, liens, and common charges; Insurance reinstatement, flood insurance and late fees; payment of electricity/gas, sewer/garbage and water utility bills; and delinquent property tax payments and foreclosure prevention.

To be eligible, you must be a Jamestown Tribal citizen. The home must be your primary residence. Income eligibility is up to 150% of the federal poverty level ($19,140 for a single person; $25,860 for two, etc.), and you must complete an application showing how COVID-19 impacted your ability to pay for the costs noted above.

Applications are available from Ann Jagger (ajagger@jamestowntribe.org or 360-681--3411) or Lesly DeAngelo (ldeangelo@jamestowntribe.org or 360-681-4635).

LIHEAP Home Energy Assistance Program Available

The 2023 Jamestown Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will begin on January 1, 2023. The program will be available through March 30, 2023. All Jamestown Tribal citizens in our service area who meet the income limit (150% of the federal poverty level) are eligible.

LIHEAP helps keep families safe and healthy through initiatives that assist families with energy costs. LIHEAP provides federally funded assistance to reduce the costs associated with home energy bills, energy crises, weatherization, and minor energy-related home repairs.

The Housing Program will be mailing out applications on December 15, 2022, to those who have received LIHEAP assistance in the past. If you do not receive an application by January 1, please contact Ann Jagger at 360-681-3411 or Lesly DeAngelo at 360-681-4635 to request one.

Archaeology and Artifacts of the Sequim Bypass Sites with Jamestown S'Klallam Tribal Elder Kathy Duncan

Take a closer look at the Sequim Bypass sites with Kathy Duncan, Jamestown Tribal Elder who represented the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe in excavations in 1996-1997. A total of 134,833 artifacts were recovered from both sites, documenting multiple occupations with the earliest dating back to the early- to mid- Holocene. In addition to individual artifacts, archaeologists found evidence of pit houses complete with features like hearths, oven pits and tool production areas.

Library Services

Book mobile services—Tribal citizens/descendants/staff can request books, videos, magazines, etc. to be delivered usually on the 2nd Wednesday of each month. If you would like items delivered or picked up, please call 360-681-4632 and leave a message or email library@jamestowntribe.org.

Curbside service—You may browse our collection at <https://library.jamestowntribe.org/home> and click on the red “Search Library Catalog” button. If you remember your log-in information you may reserve items or you can always call/email the Library. If you want something to read/watch but don't really know what, let us know and we can bring you a “grab bag” of items. We have a lot of new books that are just begging to be read.

Research—If you have a question or topic that you need to research, we are happy to help.

If you have any questions or concerns, would like mobile or curbside services, or help with research, please call us at 360-681-4632 or email library@jamestowntribe.org.
