Jamestown Tribe to Challenge DNR's Net Pen Decision

Since time immemorial, the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe has been proactive in salmon recovery and habitat restoration to ensure that the next generation can consume traditional and customary foods. It is widely known that the number of wild fish in Washington State is not sufficient to meet the market demands. In 2019, the Tribe partnered with Cooke Aquaculture to grow Black Cod (sablefish) and triploid, all-female Rainbow Trout (Steelhead) in net pens in Port Angeles Harbor. This initiative would ensure that these fish are grown in a sustainable and environmentally responsible manner, provide economic growth to the community, and continue our efforts to restore the natural salmon species essential for our reserved Treaty rights.

On November 18, 2022, the State of Washington

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Commissioner of Public Lands, Hilary Franz, issued an order to ban commercial fin fish net pens. Even though there is claim that net-pen farming causes contamination and harms the environment, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) conducted a study and found that net-pen farming in the Puget Sound "is not likely to jeopardize the continued existence" of the fish and "is not likely to result in the destruction or adverse modification" of their habitats. The State's Department of Fish & Wildlife and Department of Ecology conducted their own separate analysis as well and came to the same conclusion.

In response to DNR's decision, Cooke Aquaculture filed an appeal on December 14, 2022, and the Tribe filed suit the next day. W. Ron Allen, Tribal Chairman stated, "Our Tribe intends on pursuing seafood industry options utilizing 21st century technology that can continue to provide jobs in the industry, revenue for Tribal programs and be a tool to enhance the resource for the fishers and Orca whales."

Managing Winter Surges of Respiratory

Virus Infections by Tom Locke, MD, MPH

Most people have probably heard the warnings of a “triple-demic” of respiratory virus infections this Winter. Unfortunately, there is a good deal of truth to this threat – community levels of influenza, respiratory syncytial virus (RSV), and COVID are all rising at the same time and likely to persist through the Winter season. All three infections are caused by viruses and have similar symptoms – fever, sore throat, headache, cough, nasal congestion, and tiredness. All are spread person-to-person, including for 1-2 days before symptoms begin. Severity of illness depends a lot on the exposed persons age, vaccination status, and presence of underlying health conditions that increase the risk of complications. There are distinct differences between the three viruses.

RSV: RSV was first discovered in 1956 but has likely been circulating in human populations much longer. It can cause severe illness in the very young and very old. Infants under one year of age are at highest risk of severe illness. By age two, most children have been exposed to the virus and risk of severe disease starts to decrease. Between ages 5 and 65, RSV typically causes a milder, “common cold” like illness, after 65 risk of severe disease starts to rise again. People with chronic lung disease or problems with their immune systems are at higher risk of complications. There are promising vaccines in the late state of development for adults and may be available as soon as next Summer. Effective vaccines for children are further off in the future. There are no effective antiviral medicines to treat RSV.

Influenza: Influenza has been causing human disease for thousands of years as avian forms of the virus (“bird flu”) spread to humans and trigger global pandemics. Influenza tends to spread during the Fall and Winter months (Nov to March in the Northern Hemisphere, May to September in the Southern Hemisphere) and “flu season” is well known to most people. Due to the many precautions taken to control the COVID pandemic, flu season has been especially mild for the past 2 years. This appears to be changing – this year’s flu season began early and is the most severe in over a decade. Fortunately, vaccines are available and supplies are plentiful. Vaccines can help reduce the risk and severity of flu infection but are far from 100% effective. For people at high risk of flu complications (chronic disease, old age, or pregnancy) 4 different antiviral medications are available but are only effective if taken early in the course of the infection.

COVID: Caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus, the global COVID pandemic is entering its 4th year. Highly effective vaccines are available to reduce the risk of severe disease but the virus has kept mutating in ways that make it more contagious and resistant to the immunity provided by vaccines or past infection. Fortunately, most people have some level of immunity to COVID at this point and life-threatening complications are mostly limited to those over age 65 and/or serious underlying health issues. Antiviral treatments are available that can dramatically reduce the risk of hospitalization and severe disease but are underutilized. The most effective antiviral drug, Paxlovid, is available to anyone with risk factors for COVID complications and is strongly encouraged for those 65 years of age and older. As with other antiviral medications, it is important to take it early in the course of the infection.

How to Prevent infection:

For flu and COVID – make sure you are fully vaccinated

Wash your hands before eating or touching your face – RSV and flu are both spread by infectious droplets that collect on hard surfaces and can live for several hours. Contaminating your hands then eating or touching your eyes, nose, or mouth can cause infection. This appears to be much less of a risk with COVID.

Resume mask wearing in high risk situations using a well fitting KN-95, N-94, or KF-94 mask. All three viruses can be spread by droplets coughed or sneezed into the air from an infected person. COVID seems to have the highest risk of airborne spread. Disposable surgical masks offer about 60% protection, even more if covered with a cloth mask (“double masking”). High risk situations include crowded indoor spaces, public transit, and when caring for ill people.

What to Do if you get sick

Get tested – home tests for COVID are free and readily available, testing for flu and RSV requires a clinic visit. PCR testing for all three infections can be done on a single nasal swab specimen. Stay home and isolate if you are sick. After you start to feel better, use a mask in public until all symptoms have disappeared.

Get treated—if you are at risk for complications (age, chronic disease, pregnancy) and have tested positive for either influenza or COVID.

What to Expect in Coming Months

RSV levels appear to be peaking but will likely continue at high levels for the first 3 months of 2023. Influenza season began very early this year and will likely peak in January and drop off in March as the weather warms. COVID peaks follow seasonal patterns but the virus has proven to be very adaptable and its future course is highly unpredictable. While current increased COVID levels are likely to drop in February or March, it will not fully disappear. Seasonal respiratory viruses are a fact of life and “tripleemics” may be the new normal for several years. If we combine prevention, early detection, appropriate isolation, and treatment, when necessary and available, we can safely resume our pre-pandemic lives without resorting to the disruptive lockdowns of 2020 and 2021.

Salish Carvings Added to Nature Center Exterior

These four unique carvings were installed on Wednesday, December 14.

In the Jamestown S’Klallam Tribe’s “House of Myths”, Bud Turner, and Tribal citizens Tim O’Connell and Dusty Humphries carved four Salish house post carvings for the Dungeness River Center. Each of these carvings has its own Klallam and English name on a plaque and includes the carver’s names.

Jamestown Attends the Indian Child Welfare Act

Hearings

Prior to the passing of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) of 1978, American Indian and Alaska Native children were being removed by state child welfare agencies from their homes more than any other race of people in the United States. The reason for the high number of removals varied, from legitimate abuse and/or neglect of children, to state social workers misunderstanding our living situations (many states believed that if a home did not have running water, the home was neglectful of children), to state social workers misunderstanding the child rearing practices within our native cultures.

ICWA was passed as an acknowledgement, from Congress, of very important values (a few of those highlighted here):

- Federally recognized Tribal Nations are sovereign, and each tribe determines who is eligible to be a citizen of their nation.
- Children are the future of our Tribal Nations. We have a value of doing good work now that positively affects our families seven generations from today. If our children are taken from us, we lose our sacred lifeline into the future.
- The disproportionate amount of child removals caused historic trauma that many tribal communities still experience today.

In the last couple of years, a handful of Superior and Supreme Court cases have come to light; their focus is to come against the Tribes' ability to keep their sovereign connections with their children. One particular case, Brackeen v. Haaland, has received a lot of attention—for good reason. A quick summary of the court case: “[It] is the lawsuit brought by Texas (and previously Indiana and Louisiana) and several individual plaintiffs, who allege ICWA is unconstitutional. This case has worked its way through the lower courts (federal district court, Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit en banc) and is being reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court in the fall of 2022.” More can be learned at this website for those who are interested: <https://narf.org/cases/brackeen-v-bernhardt/>.

The National Indian Child Welfare Association invited Tribal Leaders, Spiritual Leaders, Healers, and Families from Indian Country to join the organization in a prayer vigil event on November 9th, 2022. The purpose of the event was to bring songs and prayers to the front steps of the Supreme Court while the Brackeen v. Haaland case was in its first oral hearing. All who attended this event wanted to show a physical presence and support for the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA).

The prayer vigil was a peaceful gathering of about 150 people, and the atmosphere felt like Protocol during our Canoe Journeys. Each tribe that wanted to bring a song, prayer, or dance signed up on a list and took turns coming to the microphone. While one could sense feelings of frustration and anxiety about the case, what was felt most strongly was a sense of love, peace, and a deep confidence that spiritual help was coming on behalf of our people. Loni Greninger (Prince Family) was able to attend the event on behalf of Jamestown. Standing alongside Port Gamble S’Klallam citizen, Tleena Ives, they shared a prayer and the sé?ya? (Grandmother) Song by Port Gamble S’Klallam citizen, Joseph Price.

New Staff

Liz Barbee

When walking into the Administration Building, the first face you will see is Liz Barbee's, who is our new Administrative/Natural Resources Program Assistant! She grew up in Port Townsend and has spent some time in California, Louisiana, and New York. Previously, Liz was at Keller Supply Company in Sequim, where she managed the plumbing shipping and receiving orders.

She is excited for the professional growth opportunities and new skillsets that this position offers. "I'm learning something new every day! Plus, each day is unique and has different things going on," said Barbee. She also loves that this position interacts with people every day and the wide variety of tasks.

In her free time, Liz is reading, camping, hiking, or spending time with her dogs Hades and Bella. If it's the summertime, you'll find her cheering at Bump to Pass races. You can reach Liz at lbarbee@jamestowntribe.org.

Kristin Puhl, MD

Kristin is originally from Port Angeles, went off to college in Bellingham and then worked and went back to school in Seattle at UW. She came back to the Peninsula for her residency and stuck around afterwards and is planning to stay. Kristin came to JFHC because she heard it's where all the coolest people are! She is really looking forward to working with the different programs that Jamestown offers to support the community.

Her areas of clinical passion are mental health care and care for the LGBTQIA+ community—she thinks it's so rewarding to work with people who often struggle with the medical system, and to do it in a supportive environment. During her time off, she loves to bake, read, and spend time with her dogs. Please feel free at any time to show her pictures of your pets or ask to see pictures of hers.

We Remember

Nichole Red Elk

May 10, 1972—October 24, 2022

Nichole Marie (Shameenitza) Red Elk born May 10, 1972 left us October 24, 2022. Nichole left behind her sister Michelle and her brother Jason, and her children Nashawnee George, Lashayna George, Russell George and Wahchekiya Cabanoc and also grandchildren Peyton Johnson, Viniah Johnson, Twila George and Brianne, Luanne and Syanne Roberts and her parents Bob and Arlene (Hall) Red Elk.

Nichole was a one person grassroots community advocate. She enjoyed powwow and winter dancing, beading, seeing and cooking. She was well known for cooking ducks from scratch for various gatherings. She will be missed for many reasons. Nikki was a descendant from the House of Seven Brothers. Her grandmother Dorothy (Hall) Lombard was the daughter of Wallace Hall and Mabel John (Port Gamble). Wallace Hall was the son of William and Ida (Balch) Hall. Rest in peace beautiful daughter.

David Martin Purser

August 15, 1941 - November 11, 2022

A Celebration of Life Service is scheduled for Saturday, January 14th at 1pm at Red Cedar Hall in Blyn.

You are welcome to contribute a favorite side dish to the meal. All are invited to share in this special time of honoring the life of our beloved family member, friend and fellow Tribal citizen.

David was laid to rest at Jamestown S'Klallam Cemetery on Nov. 30, 2022.

Joel Franklin Hartline

June 3, 1946 – November 14, 2022

It is with great sadness that Tribal Elder Dolores McConaghy (Cable) lets us know of the passing of her husband Joel. He was buried at Jamestown Cemetery in the Chubby plot. Joel was born in Chicago and traveled extensively as a child to places including Tacoma, Jamaica and Thailand, with his family. He graduated from high school in Palo Alto, CA, and then received a Bachelor's degree from WSU Pullman in Agronomy (soil management and crop production). He worked as a cook in many places including Alaskan camps and on a tugboat. Joel was a Christian volunteer who studied Citizen Reentry Prison to Community at Wheaton College Billy Graham Center, and at Christian University GlobalNet. After he retired, he mentored prisoners, teaching about the bible and a better way to live.

He and Dolores met in 2009 and married on November 19, 2011. They settled at her home in Port Townsend, where he took care of the home while she worked. "He spoiled me," Dolores said. He is survived by a sister and four nephews in Canada.

New For Our People Video Features Jamestown Healing Clinic

For Our People is a docuseries produced by the Tribal Self-Governance and Education Consortium that takes you on a journey across Indian Country - sharing stories that demonstrate the success and innovation of Tribal governments as they build healthy, sustainable, and prosperous Nations.

In episode 3, the Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe shares its efforts to confront the opioid epidemic in its community, following the journey of Tribal Citizens, Shawna Priest and her children Hannah and Josh. In addition, the episode also includes a visit to Santa Clara Pueblo where the community's desire is to hold non-natives accountable for crimes committed on pueblo lands. A story about Native artist, Derek No-Sun Brown concludes the episode and depicts examples of his unique style of art, clothing design, and his impressive entrepreneurial spirit.

Veterans Honored at Jamestown Cemetery

On December 19th, 2022, live balsam Christmas wreaths were placed on Veteran grave markers at Jamestown Cemetery honoring Jamestown S'Klallam Veterans for National Wreaths Across America Day. The wreaths are placed, and the Veterans' names were said out loud to honor them and remember their sacrifices. The Jamestown S'Klallam Tribe purchased the wreaths from the Michael Trebert Chapter (MTC) of the daughters of the American Revolution for this event. The event was attended by Jamestown S'Klallam Veterans Michael Lowe and Victor Knickerbocker, as well as Fred Grinnell, husband of Tribal Elder, Elaine Grinnell, Jamestown S'Klallam Elders, citizens, and Tribal Council representatives Dana Ward and Rochelle Blankenship, and Daughters of American Revolution representatives Judy Tordini and Anita Reynolds.

The following Veterans were honored: Philip Doyle Adams, Joseph Jr. Allen, William Allen, Dale Cope, Donald Richard Sr. Dick, Marvin (Pete) Holden, Wilfred Johnson, Chadwick Judson, and Milton Lombard. The wreaths will be left on the graves until January 14th, 2023, when they will be picked up and recycled. If a family member would like the wreaths to be left longer, please contact Allie Taylor at ataylor@jamestowntribe.org or 360-681-4638.

Veterans Fred Grinnell, Michael Lowe and Victor Knickerbocker gave tribute to Tribal veterans at the Jamestown Cemetery on Dec. 19th.

Family Services and Youth Team host Winter Wonderland

We were pleased to have our 6th annual Winter Wonderland Gathering in a combined setting this year, after being restricted by COVID the previous years. We had almost 40 families attend and approximately 125 people!

The Family Services and Youth Team sponsored this event, along with the Office of Victims of Crime agency, which provide us grants to help host these wonderful events! Every event gives us the ability to connect, share a meal and resources.

LIHEAP Home Energy Assistance Program Available

The 2023 Jamestown Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will begin on January 1, 2023. The program will be available through March 30, 2023. All Jamestown Tribal citizens in our service area who meet the income limit (150% of the federal poverty level) are eligible.

LIHEAP helps keep families safe and healthy through initiatives that assist families with energy costs. LIHEAP provides federally funded assistance to reduce the costs associated with home energy bills, energy crises, weatherization, and minor energy-related home repairs. The Housing Program mailed out applications on December 15, 2022, to those who have received LIHEAP assistance in the past. If you did not receive an application, please contact Ann Jagger at 360-681-3411 or Lesly DeAngelo at 360-681-4635 to request one.

Homeowners Assistance Funds Applications Available

U.S. Department of Treasury Funds are available for Jamestown S'Klallam Tribal homeowners who have been affected by COVID-19. Eligible expenses include mortgage payments and reinstatement; Homeowner Association fees, liens, and common charges; Insurance reinstatement, flood insurance and late fees; payment of electricity/gas, sewer/garbage and water utility bills; and delinquent property tax payments and foreclosure prevention. To be eligible, you must be a Jamestown Tribal citizen. The home must be your primary residence. Income eligibility is up to 150% of the federal poverty level ($19,140 for a single person; $25,860 for two, etc.), and you must complete an application showing how COVID-19 impacted your ability to pay for the costs noted above.

Applications are available from Ann Jagger, ajagger@jamestowntribe.org or 360-681-3411, or Lesly DeAngelo, Ideangelo@jamestowntribe.org or 360-681-4635.

American Indian Endowed Scholarship Applications are available!

Applications are available now to apply for the 2023-2024 American Indian Endowed Scholarship (AIES) awards. The Washington Student Achievement Council (WSAC) will accept signed and completed applications that are postmarked by March 1, 2023.

Tribal Court Announcements

After the Tribe files a civil complaint, we have a duty to cause the defendant to be served with a copy of the complaint and a summons in the form maintained by the Clerk of Court so that the defendant has a fair opportunity to respond to the complaint.

The defendant may be served by any person over the age of eighteen (18) years who is neither a party to the action, nor a member of a party's immediate family. Personal service may be affected by personally delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to the defendant or by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint with a person of suitable age and discretion at the residence of the defendant served, with directions to deliver it to the defendant to be served.

If the defendant cannot be found on the trust, reservation, or fee lands of the Tribe, and service cannot be accomplished by certified mail, return receipt requested, or service attempts by the Tribal Police, the Tribe may ask the judge to allow service by publication.

Publication alerts persons of government or government-related activities that may cause a person to take action. Traditionally newspapers that are intended for general circulation, published regularly at short intervals, and containing intelligence of current news of general interest have been used to publish public notices because newspapers are readily accessible to the public.

Service/notice by publication is a legal accepted form of giving notice to a defendant when all other attempts to serve the defendant have failed. This ensures that the case may proceed and conclude without unnecessary delay.

Library Services

Book mobile services—Tribal citizens/descendants/staff can request books, videos, magazines, etc. to be delivered usually on the 2nd Wednesday of each month. If you would like items delivered or picked up, please call 360-681-4632 and leave a message or email library@jamestowntribe.org.

Curbside service—You may browse our collection at <https://library.jamestowntribe.org/home> and click on the red “Search Library Catalog” button. If you remember your log-in information you may reserve items or you can always call/email the Library. If you want something to read/watch but don’t really know what, let us know and we can bring you a “grab bag” of items. We have a lot of new books that are just begging to be read.

Research—If you have a question or topic that you need to research, we are happy to help.

If you have any questions or concerns, would like mobile or curbside services, or help with research, please call us at 360-681-4632 or email library@jamestowntribe.org.
